

The Traveller Movement's Top 5 Useful Apps and Websites for Home Education

Duolingo is a gamified language-learning platform that offers interactive lessons in various languages, focusing on vocabulary, grammar, and pronunciation. It adapts to users' proficiency levels and provides a fun, engaging way to learn languages through a mix of exercises and community support.

Brilliant is an interactive learning app designed to teach math, science, and computer science through engaging, hands-on problem-solving and guided lessons. It encourages users to think critically and creatively, making complex concepts more accessible and enjoyable for learners of all ages.

BBC Bitesize is an educational website offering a wide range of resources for students in the UK, covering subjects from mathematics and science to history and English. It provides interactive lessons, videos, and quizzes designed to help learners of all ages grasp key concepts and prepare for exams.

Khan Academy Kids is a free educational app designed for children ages 2 to 8, offering interactive games, stories, and activities to foster learning in subjects like reading, math, and social-emotional skills. The app features a personalized learning experience, adapting to each child's pace and progress while promoting a love for learning through engaging content.

Tynker is an engaging app that teaches children how to code through interactive games and fun activities, making programming accessible for kids of all ages. With a variety of courses covering topics from basic coding concepts to advanced programming languages, Tynker encourages creativity and problem-solving skills in a playful environment.